The Benwood Independent has placed its ears to the political turf and hears the "distant tramp of the Republican host" in West Virginia that "two years hence the opposition may not be able to withstand."

This Parkersburg Journal believes that the River Railroad has come at last, and come to be built as speedily as possible, and is much clated over the near prospect of the shrill whistle of the locomotive and the resounding rumble of the cars rushing with, dissolved in luke-warm water. the resounding rumble of the cars rushing through the Valley of the Ohio between Parkersburg and Wheeling.

to any extent north of Mason and Dixon's line in the campaign this year. In fact, as the saying goes, it has been conspicuous by its absence from the political arena. This has been interpreted as evidence of the fact that we are not only getting further and further from the war, but also as evidence of the existence of a better feeling North and South. No doubt there is a better feeling than there was some years ago; it would be deplorable, indeed, if some progress had not been made in this direction; but that there is such a feeling as many suppose, and a still greater number desire; that is, that the embers of hate and animosity have died out, cannot be assumed in view of recent legislation in South Carolina (providing for a multiplicity of ballot-boxes) or from the comments of the Vicksburg Headd (Dem.) on the outrageous denial of free speech to such a respected and prominent native born citizen of Mississippi as Col. Alcorn.

As throwing considerable light on the present political situation in the South we would call attention to the following views expressed a day or two ago at Cincinnati by Col. A. M. Swope, of Kentucky, a citizen of high respect and prominence in that line in the campaign this year. In fact, by Col. A. M. Swope, of Kentucky, a citizen of high respect and prominence in that The negro question is the second second difficulty in the way of Republican success in the ex-slave States. The man who thinks this is a dead issue in these States doesn't this is a dead issue in the people and the tions of 1798; in the divine origin of slavery, and our constitutional right to maintain the same; that secession was a constitu-tional measure, and that the suppression of the rebellion and the freedom of our residence of this firster's mucle. His South Frond of the rebellion and the freedom of our slaves were but robbery and murder committed on our people. We do not believe in negro citizenship, suffrage, or civil rights, and to this end we fought the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, and we now hate the Republican party because they freed our negroes, made them better than a white man, and refused to pay us for them."

"Do you sincerely think, Colonel, that these Southern people expect payment for their slaves?"

"No, they do not; but they are mad because payment never was made, and they hate the party that has declined to make it. Tariff, finance, taxation, &e., may do for blinds and side issues, but the negro question is the one great question with the average Southern Democrat. When a cause payment never was made, and they hate the party that has declined to make it. Tariff, finance, taxation, &c., may do for blinds and side issues, but the negroquestion is the one great question with the average Southern Democrat. When a father has a son 21 years old, ready to east his first vote the old man doesn't discuss tariff, taxation, &c., to make a Democrat out of his son. He simply says: 'My son, we must stand solid and vote against the negroes and Radicals. That's all that's necessary.' There is nothing in the current politics of the day to make the solid South a certainty but prejudice."

"Is there much of the old Whig element left in Kentucky?"

"In spirit, yes. Thave known thousands of these old Whigs and Union men here in the State who have never left at home in the Democratic party, and who feel at heart that the Republican party has been right on all the great questions for the past quarter of a century. Yet the loss of office, the loss of business, and particularly a social ostracism would be visited on them if they joined the 'negro equality party,' and hence they are deterred."

joined the 'negro equality party,' and hence they are deterred."

It is this condition of public opinion in the South that Mahone and his followers are attempting to break down in Virginia. If they succeed, as they expect to, it will hereafter be possible to be a Republican and at the same time to be socially respectable in that State. Mahone, Riddleberger Geo. S. Wise and Gov. Cameron, all men of Confederate antecedents, have staked their all on this attempt to break up the solid South and liberate public opinion It is this recognized outcome of their success that gives them such a large measure, of sympathy and good wishes at the North despite- their unpopular views on the debt question of Virginia. Thousands of Republicans who have no sympathy with their readjuster views have intense sympathy with the National phase of their canvass, and hope they may sweep the State in November, believing that it is a matter of the utmost importance to Virginia and the whole South

that this social ostracism for opinion's sake should be broken down.
